Newsletter of the California State College, San Bernardino Alumni Association — July, 1983

Lawrence Daniels named Alumnus of the year

Lawrence Daniels, president of the Alumni Association for two consecutive terms from 1978 to 1982, was named alumnus of the year at the fourth annual awards program for the association April 24.

Honored as distinguished alumni were the Very Rev. Dr. Chrysostomos (formerly John Gonzalez), Virginia Comstock, Charlotte Gusay and Dr. Yolanda T. Moses.

Daniels, who received his B.A. in 1976 in social sciences and M.A. in 1980 in education, is communication supervisor at Norton Air Force Base. As well as being the primary person instrumental in the association's development, Daniels has served on several college committees.

Dr. Chrysostomos is abbot of the St. Gregory Palamas Greek Orthodox Monastery in Etna, Calif. He earned his B.A. in psychology from Cal State in 1971 and also holds a B.A. and M.A. in history from University of California campuses, and an M.A. degree and doctorate in psychology from Princeton.

Ms. Comstock, BS 1980 in nursing, is a registered nurse and patient care coordinator of a special care unit at Beverly Hospital in Los Angeles. She has been instrumental in the development and implementation of patient care plan guides for local hospitals.

Ms. Gusay, BA 1967 in English, is the owner of George Sand, Books in Los Angeles. Her bookstore, which features works by both recognized and unknown authors, began publishing in 1982.

Dr. Moses, BA 1968 in sociology, is dean of the School of Arts at Cal Poly,

New dean heads Alumni affairs

Michael W. Anderson, associate director of university development at UCLA, will be the new executive dean for college relations, President Anthony H. Evans announced.

Alumni affairs will be one of the responsibilities for the new dean, who will arrive on campus Aug. 15.

Anderson, chosen after a nationwide search, has had alumni experience in addition to fund-raising and admissions work. Prior to moving to the UCLA position in 1979, Anderson was director of development at Scripps College, acting director of development for Claremont University Center, director of corporate and foundation relations and alumni development at Claremont Men's College and assistant director of admissions at Johns Hopkins University.

A native Californian, Anderson earned his B.A. in history from Claremont Men's College and his M.A. in American history from Claremont Graduate School. He has completed course work toward a Ph.D. in higher education at Claremont.

The executive dean, who will report directly to the president, will be heavily involved in community relations, fund

Cal State inaugurates second president

During his inauguration as second president of Cal State, San Bernardino May 17, Dr. Anthony H. Evans quoted Sir Walter Scott in hoping that the college would have "the will to do and the soul to dare."

One of the greatest challenges is meeting the needs of a geographically and culturally diverse region, President Evans said. A key is to establish working relationships with other institutions of higher education, primary and secondary schools, parents and communities.

Battling mediocrity in education was the theme of guest speaker Justice James Brickley of the Michigan State Supreme Court. A long-time friend of Dr. Evans, Brickley is a former lieutenant governor of Michigan and president of Eastern Michigan University.

Kathy Fortner, president of the Alumni Association, offered words of support to the new president on behalf of alumni. Noting the foundation built by President Emeritus John M. Pfau, she said, "As all our alumni know, it is this strong tradition of academic excellence that has most benefited the graduates of California State College, San Bernardino.

"We applaud the ambitious efforts of Dr. Evans to make these same outstanding educational opportunities available to a larger number of students within this region."

NEW MEMBERS

The Alumni Association welcomes a record of 167 new members this quarter, the largest number of graduates who have joined the college during a quarter. This total compares with a 26 count in spring, 32 in winter, and 57 in fall. Membership in the association now totals 655.
